

Tony Romo

On game:

I think you could see throughout the entire first half if we don't beat ourselves, we have a good chance to compete and play well.

Did it feel good to take a hit?

Oh yeah. It always feels great. It's always good to brush that off. You kinda take it and you get up and you keep going. It's a good thing.

It's been 267 days since you were on field. Good to be back in action?

Yeah I treat practice like it. It's always a little different because of the atmosphere, but progressions, reads and trusting your teammates around you, that's what you do at practice. Then you just let it go.

How impressed are you with Dak Prescott?

He's played great. Obviously we're looking for a guy to come in and play well. Kellen [Moore] did a good job last year and he had a good competition in camp with Jameill and obviously with Dak. I've been very impressed with how Dak played. It kind of reminds me a little bit of back in the day in some capacity. He's playing great. To have depth at that position, it's a big bonus. Hopefully he can continue to do that. And he's a good kid, so you really root for him.

In what way does it remind you of you when you were coming up?

Just playing good. *laughs

What kind of confidence does QB depth give team?

It gives everything. Obviously you never want to be dependent in the locker room. I think we have enough talent and ability and a lot of depth at different positions. I think you're seeing some of it at wide receiver, and I mentioned that. And running back as well. We have a really good offensive line so the combination is a good thing. When you can go to that quarterback, it just helps the football team.

Thoughts on Alfred Morris:

He's playing great. Alfred did a great job. I think he's just sees the hole and he hits it. It's a real good – I'd like to say it's a real good scheme for him, but really I think he's pretty good at everything other than catching flat routes. But other than that, he's good.

Is there a part of you that wants Dak to wait his turn?

No, we want Dak to be good.

I mean it as in I bet you want to play:

I think at the end of the day, you want to play every game. 16 games. No one goes into a season thinking they're going to get hurt, but to have depth allows you to overcome situations that aren't always ideal. At the same time, it's a progression. Each day the games will get tougher because you move on here. Dak knows that and he knows that he's playing great right now. I suspect he'll continue to do that. In a perfect world, there's a nice segue from when I'm done playing right and hope we have someone who's playing the way Dak is right now. And if Dak is that guy, then it's just a huge bonus for the organization and just everybody. That's what you root for. That's what you want to have.
